About the Bicycle Film Festival:

In 2001, the Bicycle Film Festival was founded by NYC cyclist, Brendt Barbur. The festival has successfully created a platform to celebrate bicycles through art, music and film. The first event was held at the Anthology Film Archives in New York in 2001 and by 2014, the festival has traveled to 60 cities worldwide, from Moscow to Istanbul; Tokyo to Mexico City. The festival has become a catalyst for the urban bike movement across the globe. It is a venue for emerging and recognized artists, as well as designers and filmmakers to express their shared passion for the bicycle, cycling and the festival itself.
