

'You have to be incredibly encouraging and positive and optimistic, and try to give the students permission to do as much experimenting and [make] as many attempts at embarrassing themselves – encourage them to make just the worst things ever. That, instead of the other model – which is the more critical model, of breaking apart'

Laura Owens, University of California, Los Angeles