Mnuchin Gallery is hosting “The Joy of Color” - an exhibition brings together paintings and sculpture spanning eight decades, united by their unbridled celebration of color’s power to inspire and uplift.

The artists bring together unique color combinations using a variety of mediums. Ranging from sculptures to artwork, the exhibition brings together a diverse combination of art.

“From the expressive gestures and rich impastos of Philip Guston (/artists/philip-guston-3292) and Joan Mitchell (/artists/joan-mitchell-284) to the luminous stained canvases of Morris Louis and Helen Frankenthaler (/artists/helen-frankenthaler-2528), to the vibrant contemporary abstractions of Sean Scully and Sarah Crowner, these works survey artists’ use of color from 1939 through the present day. Featured artists include Alexander Calder, Willem de Kooning, Sam Gilliam, Jeff Koons (/artists/jeff-koons-3647), Laura Owens (/artists/5597-laura-owens), Mark Rothko (/artists/mark-rothko-143), and Alma Thomas, to name a few.” writes the gallery.

For two decades, Robert Mnuchin has organized critically-acclaimed shows that examine key moments within an artist's oeuvre, often shedding light on under-investigated bodies of work by the leading figures in twentieth-century art. In addition to mounting exhibitions and publishing scholarly catalogues, he advises some of the country's most prominent private collections. He is an expert in works by Alexander Calder, Donald Judd, Franz Kline, Willem de Kooning, Jeff Koons (/artists/jeff-koons-3647), Mark Rothko (/artists/mark-rothko-143), Frank Stella, Jackson Pollock, and Andy Warhol, among others.

“Before beginning his career as an art dealer, Robert Mnuchin honed his connoisseurship as a collector during his thirty years at Goldman Sachs, where he was the partner in charge of equity trading and a member of the management committee. Upon retiring from the financial sector, he opened his gallery in the historic five-story townhouse on New York's Upper East Side where it remains today. Following successful partnerships with James Corcoran (C&M Arts) and Dominique Levy (L&M Arts), Mnuchin renamed the gallery Mnuchin Gallery in January 2013,” writes the gallery.

The exhibition is on view through December 8, 2018 at Mnuchin Gallery, 45 East 78 Street New York NY 10075 T.
